Summary: Five years after the Void was closed, peace finally returned to Balenor. But then, two Heroes suddenly dissappear while investigating a dark presence. As the forces of darkness return to darken the land, four former Heroes must once again answer the call of the Wartune.

Defenders of Balenor

This is my home, the land of Balenor in Gaia's Continent. My name is Klein, I'm a Hero. Heroes here are what all magically inclined warriors are called in Balenor.

The time of peace has come at last, five years ago the Void was closed and all evil was annihilated. Afterwards Sylphs also fell into a deep sleep. Now we Heros lead pretty normal lives. But little did we know, that everything was about to change.

>Chapter 1: Darkness Rising

I woke up in the morning and walked over to my closet. I opened it to reveal a set of armor.

I put my armor on and then looked at myself Iin the mirror, I had yellowish-gold hair parted to the right(Blonde Wig), my armor was the Apollo's Armor Legend class(Lvl 70 Knight), and my sword was the Apollo's Sword Legend.

Later I walked outside to the city center and to the Mystic's Gate that most Heroes have in their cities.

"Wait Klein!" a female voice said.

I turned around and saw my Eudaemon, Hinata, (lvl 5 Sacred Knight) standing behind me.

"You forgot this." she said holding out a necklace.

"Thanks Hinata." I said, "Are you not coming with me?"

"I'm afraid not master, I have to stay and watch over your Sylph. Who knows when he might reawaken."

"Oh, okay." I said turning around.

I put on the necklace, moments later my cape seemed to disintegrate into golden light before suddenly a pair of pure white angelic wings appeared on my back(just the normal white angel wings you can buy in the shop).

I then stepped through the Gate.

Cloud City

I appeared in Cloud City with a blue flash.

Back in the day this place would always be crowded with Heroes, but these day it is a ghost town. Only a few of the more human citizens are ever seen here these days.

I walked over in the direction of the Syloh Atol Gate. As I walked I noticed Dianah(the NPC that you go to for Hall of Heroes) talking to two Heroes. Normally I would say hello, but right now I am on a schedule.

When I arrived at the section near the Gate I saw a Hero already standing there. He was an archer, he seemed to be at least 21, he had hair exactly like mine, the Quaint Intruders Weapon, Night Hacker Garments, and white wings with blue tips.

"Hey Kirito." I said waving to him as I walked over there.

"Oh, hey Klein." he said in a somewhat, but not very, deep voice.

"How ya doing brother?" I asked.

"Good, I guess." he said scratching the back of his neck with his right hand and with a slightly bored expression on his face.

"Klein!" a girl's voice shouted happily

I turned just in time to get tackled to the ground.

"Hey, get off." I said trying to sit up, "Wait, Zekken?" I sat up, but my back was still leaning back a little.

"It's been a long time Klein." she said throwing her arms around me. She was an Archer, about 16, with a full Phoenix armor set and a Noble mask and long purple hair.

"Sorry we're a bit late." a more mature female voice said.

I looked over Zekken's shoulder and saw an Knight woman. She seemed to be 20 and she was wearing the full Haunted Halloween set.

"Asuna..." Kirito said staring as if he had just seen an angel. (Though that's not really that uncommon in Balenor).

"Hi Kirito." Asuna said which made Kirito snap back into reality.

Even though he was wearing a mask I could tell he was blushing.

I stood up and then helped Zekken up.

A few minutes later we were all at back edge of the city center looking out at the sunset near the land below. Kirito was standing with his arms crossed as he stared out silently. I sat to the left of him with my right knee up and my right hand on it and my other leg hanging off the edge. Zekken was sitting next to me with both her legs hanging of the ledge and her right shoulder slightly leaning against mine. Asuna was on the furthest left.

"It's still hard to believe." I said, "It seems like only yesterday we were traveling the lands, going to and participating in mighty tournaments, doing quests given to us by the people, and vanquishing evil like it was just another day at work."

"I really miss those days." Zekken said sadly, "Back then we could always spend time with each other no matter what." she smiled slightly.

"I miss those days too." Asuna said looking over at Kirito.

Then I noticed a bright flash appear in the forest below.

"What was that?" I said quietly.

I looked around and I could tell that the others had seen it too.

15 Minutes Earlier, Murken Forest

Two Heroes, the same ones seen talking to Dianah earlier, were on horses moving at full speed through the forest.

"I can't believe we're really on a quest after all this time." said the one to the left who was an Archer with a full Hades armor set(I believe that is the level 80 class armor for Archers).

"Me neither Dixon." said the one to the right who was a Mage wearing Demon Fighter armor (minus the helmet and wings) and Rocker Style hair.

Soon after they reached a temple that seemed to be built into the rock wall of the mountainside.

The two dismounted their horses and walked over to the structure.

"This the place Dianah told us to go," Dixon said, "You sensing anything Skyflame?"

"Nope sorry." he said, but then a few seconds later, "Wait, something's coming."

Then a Fireball came flying out of the entrance. Dixon barely dodged it when three Gnomes came running out of the entrance.

Skyflame threw one of his own Fireballs at a Gnome. The Fireball struck and the Gnome burst apart into Void energy(actually, it burst apart like you see normal, nonboss monsters do in the game).

Dixon then fired Multi-Shot taking out the other two.

"Those were Void creatures." Skyflame said, "But ththat's impossible, all of the Void creatures were pulled back into the Void when it was closed five years ago. You don't think..."

"No, it's impossible." Dixon said, "There is no way that they reopened it."

"I hope you're right. But still, we'd better report this to Dianah."

Then they both turned around and were about to mount their horses when a dark laughter filled the air. When they turned around they saw flames shooting from the temple.

"I am free at last." a voice boomed, "Now I take revenge on the miserable mortals that put me here."

Then an glowing orange clawed hand smashed through the wall. Then the hand opened up to reveal a Rune. Then the Rune began to glow and a beam of energy shot from it at each of the Heroes.

The beams hit their targets, but the Heroes appeared to be unharmed. They didn't bother wasting any time as they readied their weapons.

Skyflame stamped his staff on the ground and Dixon pulled the trigger on his crossbow, but neither of their Skills activated.

"What's wrong with this thing?" Skyflame said looking at his staff.

Then the creature laughed again and a second afterwards the entire temple wall exploded.

If this were a movie it would only be showing the two Heros from a camera view in front of them and with the monster behind the camera's view.

"It cannot be." Dixon said shaking his head slowly as he stared Iin disbelief.

Then suddenly a bright flash appeared.

Cloud City

"That was... odd." Kirito said without a better idea of what to say.

"Heroes, you must help." said a female voice coming from the left.

We all turned our heads, except for Kirito who turned to the left completely saw the Imperial Priestess Sophia running up to us.

End file.
